

ABSTRACT

A method to handle data dependencies in a pipelined computer system. The method includes allocating a plurality of registers, enabling execution of computer instructions concurrently by using the plurality of registers, and tracking and reducing data dependencies in the computer instructions by correlating busy condition of a computer instruction to each register.

unclassified
no restrictions
apply
to this document
except where
indicated
otherwise